A dessert to dazzle, without the hassle.
WELCOME
‘What I really like about entertaining is all those hours spent in the kitchen...’ said no one, ever. So that’s where we come in. We’ve got you covered, whether you’re serving Sunday lunch (you’ll want to skip to p4 for our four-wing, dry-aged rib of beef), hosting afternoon tea (with our passion fruit gâteau on p30, naturally), or throwing the ultimate stress-free get-together (the party bites on p26, super-easy to heat and serve, should help with that). After all, this is not just any feast you’re preparing – this is a feast with the quality and value you can only get from M&S...

EMMA SLEIGHT
FOOD EDITOR IN CHIEF

We’ve done all the prep for you, with delicious dishes for every occasion.

HOW MUCH DO I NEED?

Party nibbles
When serving canapés, allow 8–10 per person to pass round at a drinks party, or 4–5 as pre-dinner snacks.

Buffet table
As a general rule, go for 12–15 pieces per head. The more options you have, the less of each you’ll need – people like to take a little of everything.

Afternoon treats
Offer variety for your guests – a few finger sandwiches, a slice of cake, a mini tart, and one other sweet or savoury item per person.

Sweet somethings
If you’re going down the route of mix-and-match mini desserts rather than a single large one, allow 3–4 per person.

Wine list
For a dinner party, plan for half a bottle of wine per person, plus another for every three guests. Offer non-alcoholic drinks, too.
